ATTACHMENT I

On September 1, 2004, Corvis Corporation acquired Focal Communications Corporation and all of Focal's subsidiaries. The transaction was structured as a merger of Focal with and into Corvis Acquisition Company, a special purpose, wholly-owned direct subsidiary of Corvis. Focal survived this merger, and is not a wholly-owned, direct subsidiary of Corvis.

All subsidiaries of Focal -- including Focal Financial Services, Inc., its wholly-owned subsidiary and parent to all of the Focal state subsidiaries -- remain in place following the merger and continue to operate under the same respective names. However, on October 8, 2004, Corvis Corporation changed its name to Broadwing Corporation, and now trades under the symbol "BWNG" on the NASDAQ national market.

Broadwing Corporation is currently seeking to consolidate most of the assets of Focal Communications with and into its telephone services subsidiary, Broadwing Communications, LLC, a licensed IXC headquartered in Austin, TX. To this end, applications have been filed with the appropriate state public utility commissions for this consolidation, including applications for Broadwing Communications, LLC to provide local exchange services.

Upon consummation of the transactions which comprise this consolidation, Focal Communications Corporation would be merged into Broadwing Corporation, and substantially all assets of its subsidiaries would be conveyed to Broadwing Communications, LLC. Following this asset transfer, most of the existing Focal subsidiaries would be dissolved, and all telephone services of Broadwing Corporation -- including local exchange services -- would be conducted under the Broadwing name.

Broadwing is endeavoring to complete this consolidation by year-end. However, until this consolidation is completed, local exchange services will continue to be conducted in the Focal name.
